A GAME OF THE SENSES.

When you go to your room at night, can you walk directly to the match-box and put your hand on it?

When you turn out your light and leave your room, do you have to fumble for the door, or can you go straight across the room and take hold of the knob?

Can you at night walk among the trees without running into them, or keep the garden path as directly as you would were it daylight?

If you wish to estimate the size of anything, do you know enough of feet and inches to make a fair guess by simply looking at it?

If you are a boy can you calculate by yards if a girl be feet?

Can you guess the height of a hat by sight?

The size of anything that is deceptive because it looks larger or smaller than it really is?

Can you calculate the weight of a book, a box of matches, a hat, a glass of water, a letter, by holding it in your hand?

If you hear street cars where there is a double track, can you tell by the sound which way they are coming?

If you are near a river can you locate a teamboat by sound?

Can you use your knowledge of music in analyzing the progression of a steam whistle? Can you tell on which tone it stops?

With your eyes shut can you tell what kind of a flower is put to your nose? Do you know the difference between the odor of a leaf from a rose-bush and one from a maple-tree?

Can you tell from the bark of the trees the points of the compass?

Can you by listening tell what kind of vehicle is coming, and how many horses are attached to it? Do you know the difference in sound made by four hoofs and by eight?

Can you match colors without samples; carry colors and shades in memory?

By the touch only can you tell which material is cotton which is woolen? Can you from a bunch of different-colored zephyrs pick out a black strand, keeping your eyes shut?

Can you by the taste only tell what kind of meat you are eating? Can you decide what flavor has been used in a glass of soda water? Does a rose-petal taste like that of a violet? Do hard water and soft water taste alike?

In short: do you use your senses? Do you train your observation, and then remember what you observed?

The new methods of education are taking care of eyes and hands used together, but what classes are there for your nose, your ears, your touch, your sense of weight? Where do you go to school to learn to see in the dark, to smell fine, to hear flies sneeze? Do you not perceive that this education you must give yourself? You can train your senses every moment you are awake. At this moment what do you see, hear, smell? Are you sure you really see, hear and smell what you think you do? Suppose you make a game of "The Senses," and see how many come nearer the body prize than the first one.

If you could bring one of your favorite Indian heroes out of a book—materialize him, you know—and have him join you in the Donkey game, don't you believe he would get the tail somewhere near the right place? He would not be fit for an Indian hero if he could not walk straight with his eyes shut.

And as I like to give my text at the end instead of the beginning, here it is!

That you are not yourself, but only a fraction of what your Heavenly Father meant you to be, unless you have the full use of the senses which he gave you. —Louise Stockton, in August Wide Awake.

A Safe Investment.

Is one which is guaranteed to bring you satisfactory results, or in case of failure a return of purchase price. On this side plan you can buy from our advertised druggists a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It is guaranteed to bring relief in every case, when used for any affection of Throat, Lungs or Chest, such as Consumption, Inflammation of Lungs, Bronchitis, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Croup, etc., etc. It is pleasant and agreeable to taste, perfectly safe, and can always be depended upon. ## Rich Without Money.

Many a man is rich without money. Thousands of men with nothing in their pockets, and thousands without even a pocket, are rich. A man born with a good, sound constitution, a good stomach, a good heart, good limbs and a pretty good headpiece, is rich. Good bones are better than gold; tough muscles are better than silver; and nerves that flash fire and carry energy to every function are much better than houses and land. It is better than a landed estate to have the right kind of a father and mother. Good breeds and bad breeds exist among men as really among herds and horses. Education may do much to check evil tendencies or to develop good ones; but it is a great thing to inherit the right proportion of faculties to start with. The man is rich who has a good disposition, who is naturally kind, patient, cheerful, hopeful, and who has a flavor of wit and fun in his composition. A cross, selfish fellow, a desponding and complaining fellow, a timid and careburdened man—these are all born deformed on the inside. They do not limp, but their thoughts sometimes do. —Clay Manufacturers Engineer.

Grand Annual Excursion to the Seashore via L. & T. and C. & O. Routes.

White Sulphur Springs, Richmond, Old Point Comfort and Norfolk visited enroute. A Special Train composed of Elegant Coaches and Pullman Sleeping Cars, will leave Louisville at 1:30 p.m. from Seventh Street Depot, Tuesday, Aug. 19th, reaching Old Point Comfort next evening at 6:30 P. M.

The Round Trip Rates To Old Point is only $15 from Cloverport. Passengers will leave Cloverport at 9:55 A. M. The train will be run under auspices of the Chesapeake & Ohio R'y Co., in charge of Mr. W. A. Wilgus, Traveling Passenger Agent, formerly of Hopkinsville, Ky.

Reduced rates at the Hygeia Hotel, Old Point Comfort can be secured upon presentation of C. & O. Special Seashore Excursion tickets.

Special Attention will be paid to ladies without escorts.

Sleeping Car accommodations will be provided, but in order to have choice of berths applications should be made to W. A. Wilgus, 253 Fourth Ave., Louisville, Ky., at once. Sleeping Car Rates will be $4.00 for berth, Louisville to Old Point, to be occupied by one or two persons; Louisville to Clifton Forge $2.50 to be occupied by one or two persons.

Special side trip excursions can be made from Old Point at low rates.

The route is through the canon of New River, along picturesque Greenbrier river passing White Sulphur Springs, crossing the Alleghenies and Blue Ridge Mountains and beautiful Shenandoah and Piedmont Valleys.

Stop over privileges will be granted on the return trip, enabling excursionists to visit Richmond, White Sulphur Springs and other celebrated resorts.

The choice of routes between Richmond and Clifton Forge will be given. Excursionists may return either via Charlottesville and Stanton, or Lynchburg and Natural Bridge along the James river.

Tickets will be good returning until September 10th. Handsome book descriptive of scenery along the line will be mailed to any person upon application to W. A. Wilgus, 253 Fourth Ave., Louisville, or to Agents L. & T. & C. & O. R. R.

What a Leading Physician says:

Dr. R. S. Gordon, a leading physician of Mt. Carmel, Ill., writes the following under date March 10, 1890:

"I cheerfully recommend Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) as a tonic and general health restorer, also in case of Blood Poison it always gives satisfaction."

Years of Suffering.

"For years I have been troubled with a blood taint that has baffled the skill of the best physicians of Ohio and Indiana, the disease finally affected my eyes to such an extent that I was almost blind. I was then induced to take a course of Swift's Specific S. S. S., and am thankful to say that after taking a few bottles I was entirely cured. My eyesight is entirely restored, and my general health is better than it has been for years, and there is no trace of the disease left. I consider S. S. S. the best blood purifier and general health tonic to-day on the market."

A One Eyed Aeronaut in Europe.

It is possible that some of your readers have heard of, if they have not seen, Professor Bartholomew, the aeronaut. He is quite a character; gaudy, awkward, rural, but fearless as a lion and as sharp as a tack. He built a "Bar Oak" biplane, and made a tour around the world, and here and there he gave balloon ascensions that excited even more curiosity than did the performances of the exponents of our national game. Bartholomew has the misfortune to be a one eyed man, but the misfortune does not occasion him much remorse; it would be hard to find a more cheerful person than he. In Rome he came up to Mr. Lynch, the manager of the excursion party, and said: "Leigh, could you lend me $300?"

"Why, I suppose so," said Lynch.
"Well, I wish you could," said Bartholomew. "It would be a great accommodation. Glass eyes are so damned cheap here that it seems as if I ought to stock up on them!"

Bartholomew bought $30 worth of glass eyes and he carried them around with him in a batie bag; there were about a peck of them, and they rattled like so many marbles. They were not all the same color, but Bartholomew didn't mind a small matter of that kind. He was too much of a humorist to stickle at a detail of that character. He said that when he wore a blue eye he resembled his father's side of the family; a black eye made him look more like his mother's folk.

One day Bartholomew was riding in a hansom cab in London; the horse acted badly and the driver lashed the brute fiercely. Whoever has ridden in a hansom cab knows how awkward it is to have the long lash of the driver's whip dangling in one's eyes. Several times Bartholomew ordered the driver to be more careful in the use of his whip. Reaching his destination, Bartholomew quietly took out his glass eye, stepped out of the cab upon the sidewalk, and holding out the eye in his open hand he said sternly to the cabman: "I warned you repeatedly, yet you have done it! Wait here, now, sir, until I have summoned a policeman."

To the befuddled cabman there was an awful reality in all this. He did not wait for any further parley—oh, no, not he. Lashing his horse into a gallop, he made off as fast as ever he could, the worst scared caddy in all the United Kingdom! By this quiet ebullition of humor the pilgrim from Burr Oak evaded payment of a five shilling fare, and achieved deserved fame for having got the better of a London cab driver. Eugene Field's Letter in Chicago Times.

A Healthy Perfume.

If you want a lovely odor in your rooms break off branches of the Norway spruce and arrange them in a large jug well filled with water. In a few days tender, pale green branches, feather out, soft and cool to the touch, and giving the delightful, health giving odor we all so dearly love. My library smells of the forest. —Cor. Chatter.

Mrs. Booth's Costume.

Mrs. Dallington Booth, of the Salvation Army, is a woman of whom it may be said as truly as of Mrs. Leslie that she attends to her gowns. It would not seem that the army costume offered much chance for elaboration, but her uniform of dark blue skirt and plaited waist is perfectly fitting and of fine, rich material, finished at the throat and sleeves with a white silk cord and embroidered on the belt with a sacred motto.

Her large poke bonnet is of fine black straw, trimmed with folds of navy blue satin, the scarlet ribbon budge interwoven about the crown. It is tied at the chin with a big soft bow of broad ribbons. An American flag of fine silk forms a regalia sash, and a plain wedding ring gleams on one small hand. "Myrtle," as Marshal Booth calls his wife, has a sweet, smooth face, with fine hazel eyes. —New York Commercial Advertiser.

The Female Principal.

Ask any school teacher in New York who she prefers for a principal, and the answer will be "a man" every time. Men who make instruction a life work part with much of their masculine force and vigor, but no matter how narrow they may become they never quite reach the level of a scholastic female tyrant. The lady principal knows so well how to humiliate her subordinates. If her record is satisfactory as an instructor and disciplinarian there are her weak nesses and vanities to play upon and a thousand ways of insulting her before her pupils. The story of a teacher who began a crusade against linen collars, crinoline, bangs and pretty school toilets is still fresh in the minds of the public, and there are today scores of so called lady principals who treat their assistants as though they were slaves. —New York World.

Romania's Portia.

Mlle. Bilescu, the "Romanian Portia," read her thesis or essay for admission to the Paris faculty as doctor, or rather "doctoresse," of laws two weeks ago. This young lady is not only strong in jurisprudence, but also in science, literature and music, having gained first prizes and places for each of these subjects in Bucharest. Her essay, which comprised over 200 pages, of which 200 were not read, related to the "Position of Woman Under the Roman Law." There are only two other lady lawyers following in the footsteps of this young lady, one being a French woman and the other a Russian. Mlle. Bilescu intends to ask for admission—not to practice but on principle—to the Bucharest bar.

Keep the House Sweet.

Keeping the house sweet in these hot days, when things decay so rapidly, is difficult, but a few hints are useful. Three or four barrels of charcoal set in different parts of the cellar will be of great help in keeping the house sweet. In damp weather in summer a fire should be lighted in some room in the main part of the house, and the doors in all the rooms be opened in order that all the house may be kept dry.

To have sweet houses one must be prodigal in the use of water, fresh air and sunlight. —New York Journal.

Too Bad.

"Well, I'm glad you are better, Emily. You don't look like an invalid!"
"I know it, and I think it is just too horrid for anything. People will say I pretended to be an invalid because I had no summer clothes to wear." —Chatter.

Mrs. Hermann Odrich received as a wedding gift from King Kalakaua a yellow wreath which was greatly admired. It was made of the feathers of the golden lined Oo, a bird highly prized in Hawaii. There are but two of these bright feathers plucked from each bird.

Mlle. Rose Maury, who illustrates for five of the best Parisian journals, is the daughter of a station master in France and the protegee of M. Durny, minister of public instruction, who happened to see her sketching in the station when she was 7 years old.

A farmer at Ipswich, Mass., while plowing turned up an Indian idol of solid stone in the shape of a serpent. It is thirty inches in length and of a dark color. It is to be deposited in the Essex institute collection at Salem, Mass.

If one wishes to cool a hot dish in a hurry it will be found that if the dish be placed in a vessel full of cold salty water it will cool far more rapidly than if stood in water free from salt.

Empress Frederick of Germany has received a valuable jeweled locket bearing the Montijo arms, and containing a lock of the hair of ex-Empress Eugenie of France.

Miss Mitchell, of Kingston, a graduate of Queen's university, who received a license to practice medicine a couple of months ago, is the first woman in Canada to write M. D. after her name.

Chicken croquettes made out of veal are not so palatable as when made out of poultry, but then, if one doesn't know the difference—

Newspapers Save Ice.

Ice, completely enveloped in newspapers so that all air is shut out, will keep a longer time than under other conditions; and that a pitcher of ice water laid in a newspaper, with the ends of the paper twisted together to exclude the air, will remain all night in any summer room with scarcely any perceptible melting of the ice.

In freezing ice cream, when the ice is scarce, pack the freezer only three-quarters full of ice and salt, and finish with newspapers, and the difference in the time of freezing and the quality of cream is not perceptible from the result where the freezer is packed full of ice. After removing the dasher, it is better to cork up the cream and cover it tightly with a packing of newspapers than use more ice. The newspapers retain the cold already in the ice better than a packing of cracked ice and salt. —Scientific American.

COLONIAL DAMES OF AMERICA.

A Woman's Club to Promote Patriotism and Conserve Aristocracy.

The bold statement that another woman's society is about to be organized is not particularly startling. As in these days the custom of creating a generally become a question of club, by reason of their membership in some association formed to promote social, religious, literary, industrial or artistic aims, and having thereby vindicated more or less their claim to be considered charitable creatures, no particular attention is paid to their movements in this direction.

But when to the announcement that a new club is about to be created there is coupled the intelligence that only women will be eligible whose ancestry is established by heredity—not acquired matrimonially or by purchase, like that of the colonel in "The Pirates"—interest is at once quickened, and it becomes fairly rampant when the whole scheme is unfolded, and it appears that every member will have to make her calling, and election sure by proving her direct descent from forefathers who emigrated to America prior to the year 1780, and who made their mark upon the time to the extent at least of being "well-bred" worthy of esteem and respect.

It is intended that the proposed society shall be among women what the Order of the Cincinnati and the Sons of the Revolution are among men, and it will to a certain extent embody the principles of these societies. The aim of the organization will be "to commemorate the success of our glorious republic, to promote social intercourse and fellowship among its members now and in all the future, to inspire a genuine love of country in every heart within its range of influence, to labor to diffuse helpful and intelligent information relating to whatever concerns the past and tends to create popular interest in the men and events instrumental in the providing for our precious institutions."

It will also be an obligation to collect and preserve manuscripts, traditions, relics and mementoes of the old times when the colonies were young and the forefathers lived and moved and had their being. It will be a sacred duty devolving upon the members to teach the younger generations as they arise to hold in loving remembrance the "brave days of old," and to honor the heroic men whose ability, valor, sufferings and achievements are beyond praise, and should excite the deepest reverence and the liveliest patriotism, "and to promote social intercourse and fellowship among its members."

This is the substance of a printed letter setting forth the scheme of the new society which is being quietly circulated among those who are undoubtedly eligible and those who are presumably eligible to stand among the elect who propose to call themselves "The Colonial Dames of America."

The names of the originators of this patriotic and aristocratic corporation are not disclosed, but the blast in the "letter" which invites the woman to whom it is submitted to kindly communicate her willingness to be considered as a candidate by the committee, is variously filled out by several ladies whose family patronymic figures prominently in the annals of old, very old New York. —New York World.

From anthropological measurements made on Cambridge students it appears that their heads continue to grow after the age of 19. Those who have obtained high honors have had, on the average, considerably larger brains than the others at the age of 19, the predominance at that age being greater than at 25, a fact which is held to imply precocity as an element in the success of high honor men.

Hard to Satisfy.
Dominic Campbell was one day watching a carpenter making repairs in his house. The carpenter whistled "Maggie Lander," as he labored and worked in tune to the tune.
"Saunders," said the dominie, presently, "can you no whistle a more solemn and golly tune while ye're at work?"
"Ay, weel, minister, if it be your will," and he immediately changed the tune to the "Dead March in Saul," still playing in tune to the music.
The worthy dominie looked on for some minutes in silence, and then said, "Saunders, I have another word to say till ye die the gully will hire ye by the day's work, or by the job?"
"The day's work was our agreein', minister."
"Then on the whole, Saunders, I think ye may just as weel gear back to whistling 'Maggie Lander'." —Birmingham Post.

Electric Light and Trees.
Observers in many of the small cities blessed with shade trees have noticed that those trees near electric lights have been blighted by something, and, for the lack of some more apparent cause, the trouble is ascribed to the electric lights. The local arboriculturists say that the trees need darkness as much as men need sleep. There seems to be some reason in supposing that the nearness of the electric lights is the cause of the drooping of the trees. For similar trees, not exposed to any other illumination than that of the sun, have not been affected in that way and are bright and strong. —Boston Budget.

The Historic Monitors.
There are now thirteen monitors lying idle, the original cost of which was nearly $7,000,000. In their present condition they are not only useless, but a source of expense, and Rear Admiral Jonett favors a plan for converting them into floating batteries for coast and harbor defense, which could be done at an estimated cost of $1,000,000. —Chicago Herald.
